

EDITORIAL

THIS issue of Asian Perspectives is dedicated to the memory of Hendrik Robert van Heekeren and to his work in Southeast Asia. While he did archaeological work in several other areas of the world, this research and these areas are not included here other than in his bibliography. In the short time I allowed myself, I was not able to bring together enough articles directly relating to van Heekeren and his work to fill an entire issue. The memorial section begins with this dedication and continues through page 184; the last three articles in the issue are concerned with other topics.

A similar issue in memory of Tom Harrisson, who was killed in an accident in Bangkok in January 1976, will appear sometime in 1977.
